new blast furnace is being erected a Part Henry, New York, on which the at tention of iron masters throughout th country will probably be concentrated as soon as it is blown in, which will be in the course of a few weeks. It will be the first furnace to go into blast in the United States, with the new hot blast, fire brick stove. The leading feature of this invention consists in the largely increased temperature of the blast which the stoves can withstand, and the consequent decrease in the quantity of fuel consumed in operating the furnaces to which they are attached. The greatest temperature which can be got through ment at present, without danger of the metal giving way is stated to be about 1,200 degrees or 1,300 degrees; but it is affirmed that with these stoves a temperature of 2,000 degrees can be sustained without risk of damage. Two or more of them can be attached to the same furnace. At present mineteen furnaces in Great Britain, France and Luxembourg have been fitted with fitty-eight of these stoves; with thirty-one stoves, are now being constituted of which seven increases. first furnace to go into blast in the United budged and fifty-one stoves, are now being constructed, of which seven furnaces and twenty-five stoves age in this country, should the experiment prove to be a succes, of which no doubt seems to be enter tained, the invention will probably be brought into general use.

There were but lew passengers sboard, and during the night the conduc-tor came and sat down by him. "Goir to Memphis, are you, stranger?" he ask-ed. "Yes, sir," said the Nashville man. "Mighty rough, ain't it?" querried the conductor, with a yawn. "Very," was the reply. "Last time I went over the road this car we're in now was upset, and a man was killed all to amash," said the communicative ticket-puncher, with ancommunicative ticket-puncher, with another vawn. Then he added: "I've got other yawn. The he added: "I've got the most reckless engineer on the road with me to night, too; but I hope we won't have any accidents." "I certainly hope we will not," responded the passenger, with unesamess. "Well, I don't know as it would make much difference to you," said the conductor, cheerfully, "you'll die anyway, if you're goin'to Memphis."

A Wonderful Couple. Augusta (Ga.,) Constitutionalist. 7

We are so situated as to learn the very remarkable fact that yesterday was the anniversary of the marriage of a gentle man who has been married for twenty years and had never quarrelled with his wife, and stranger still she had nove wife, and stranger still, she had nover quarrelled with him. What wonderful man, what an extraordinary woman! They have a family, too, which adds to the story, and yet neither teething children, cholera infantum, midnight walks with baby in arma, new dresses, cold breaktast, buttoniess shirts, nor staying out at night have ever made the "angry-passions rise." Is there a man who could hope for such a blessing who would not rash wildly into matrimony? Is there a woman who, believing such a fate in store for her, would not quickly answer yes? Is there another case on record?

ed the decision of the court below. It is therefore the law at this hour in the State of New York that it a bachelor kisses a spinister, said spinister may rightfully claim his hand or his goods. In cases where shyness or lack of opportunity may have prevented actual osculation, the young lady has still another string to her beau; if she can show that he has ever "shined his eye" in her direction, he is her lawful spoil, according to Judge Meilson. There is positively no protection for a bachelor except nose-bags and blind-bridles, and the ability te prove he has never left them off. To this extent the fature at least is scarce. But how many bachelors can wake up in the night and sooths their consciences with the reflection that, like Bir Galahad, "they never felt the kiss of love, or maider's hand in theirs?" If any such there be, sweet must be his sleep; but if in his memory lurks any record of early spoons, how harrowing must be the thought that he is the promised spouse of every girl that he has even tely sainted. There are young mento-day universally beloved and respected, the drynosures of Sunday Schools and the delight of evangelical tea parties, who in the clear vision of Judge Neilson are no better than Priam, King of Troy, or Brigham, Patriarch of Sait Lake.

The gractical results of this momentous decision are apalling. To youth who values his fiberty will hereafter suffer himself to be kissed except by a lady who can show her marriage certificate, and bring New York Dry Goods Market.
